One arrest, one suspect at large following shots fired at two local houses

No one was injured when nine rounds from a handgun were fired into a Bell Circle home (near Cummins Way) in West Sacramento early Saturday morning.

The shooting occurred about 1:30 a.m. on Jan. 10.

"Eight rounds went into one house and one round into another," said Lt. David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "In one of the houses, a round narrowly missed several people."

Suspect David Carter, 21, of West Sacramento, was arrested later that morning and charged with conspiracy and shooting into an inhabited dwelling. Farmer said it is not believed that Carter was the actual shooter.

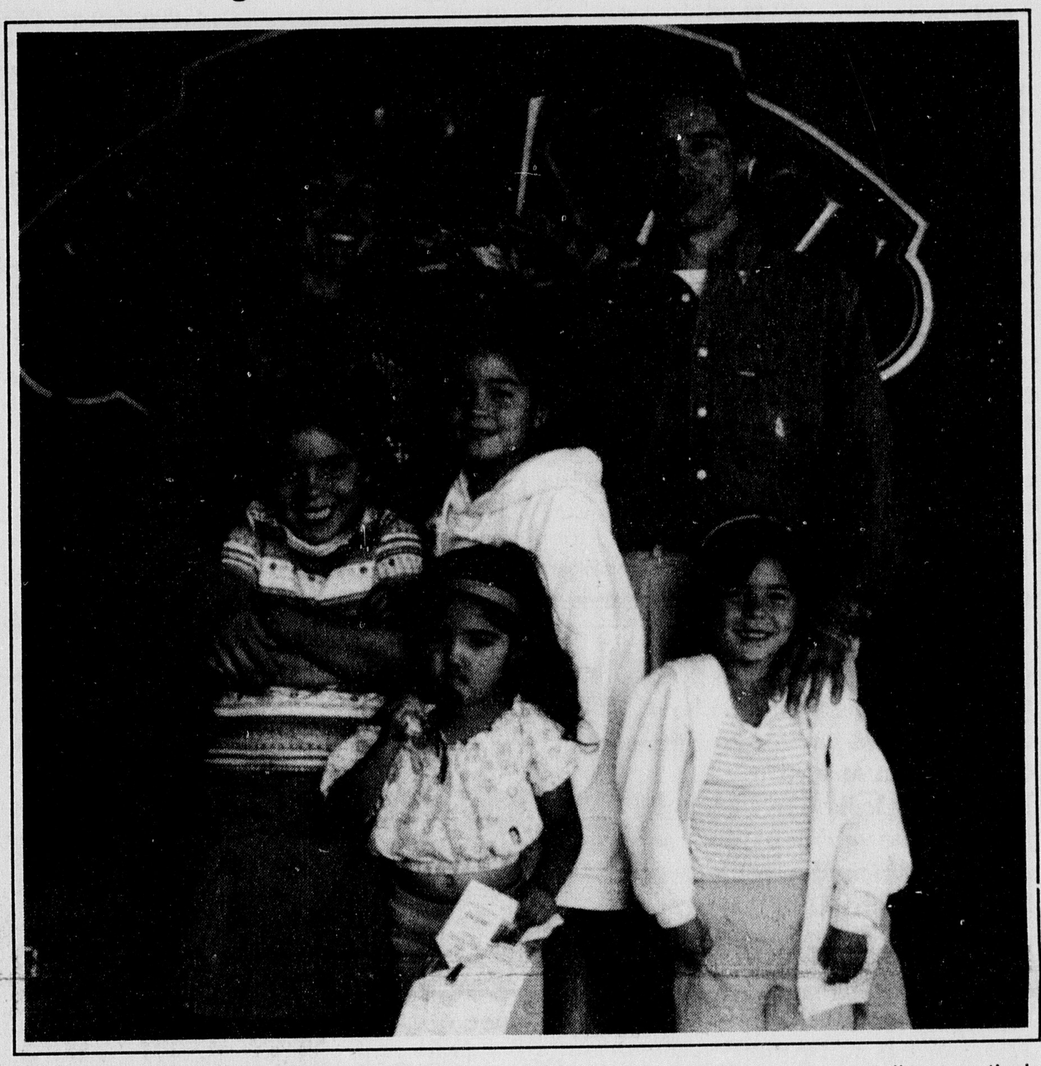
Still being sought is Zishan Malik, 19, of West Sacramento -- the second suspect in the incident. Malik is believed to have fled on foot with Carter following the shooting.

Investigators are still working on a motive and other details.

"It sounds like a conflict between Carter and Malik and one of the residents in one of the homes hit," said Farmer.

Police recovered two handguns from the scene, and believe one was fired at the dwellings.

Holiday burglary turns to joy



The family of RUDY and VALERIE RUVALCABA, above, was devastated to discover their West Sacramento house burglarized three days before Christmas. Gone were a number of possessions -- including children's Christmas presents and handmade tree ornaments. But support from neighbors and local businesses, they report, restored the Ruvalcabas' holiday. The family thanks all those who donated items and otherwise supported them and brought joy back to the 1997 holiday season.

School board ponders performance of Kelleher

By Steve Marschke

The four-member school board of the Washington Unified School District was scheduled to evaluate the performance of its superintendent, Dr. Dennis Kelleher, at last night's meeting. It was legally conceivable, said Kelleher, that they could also take action one way or the other on his contract, which expires June 30.

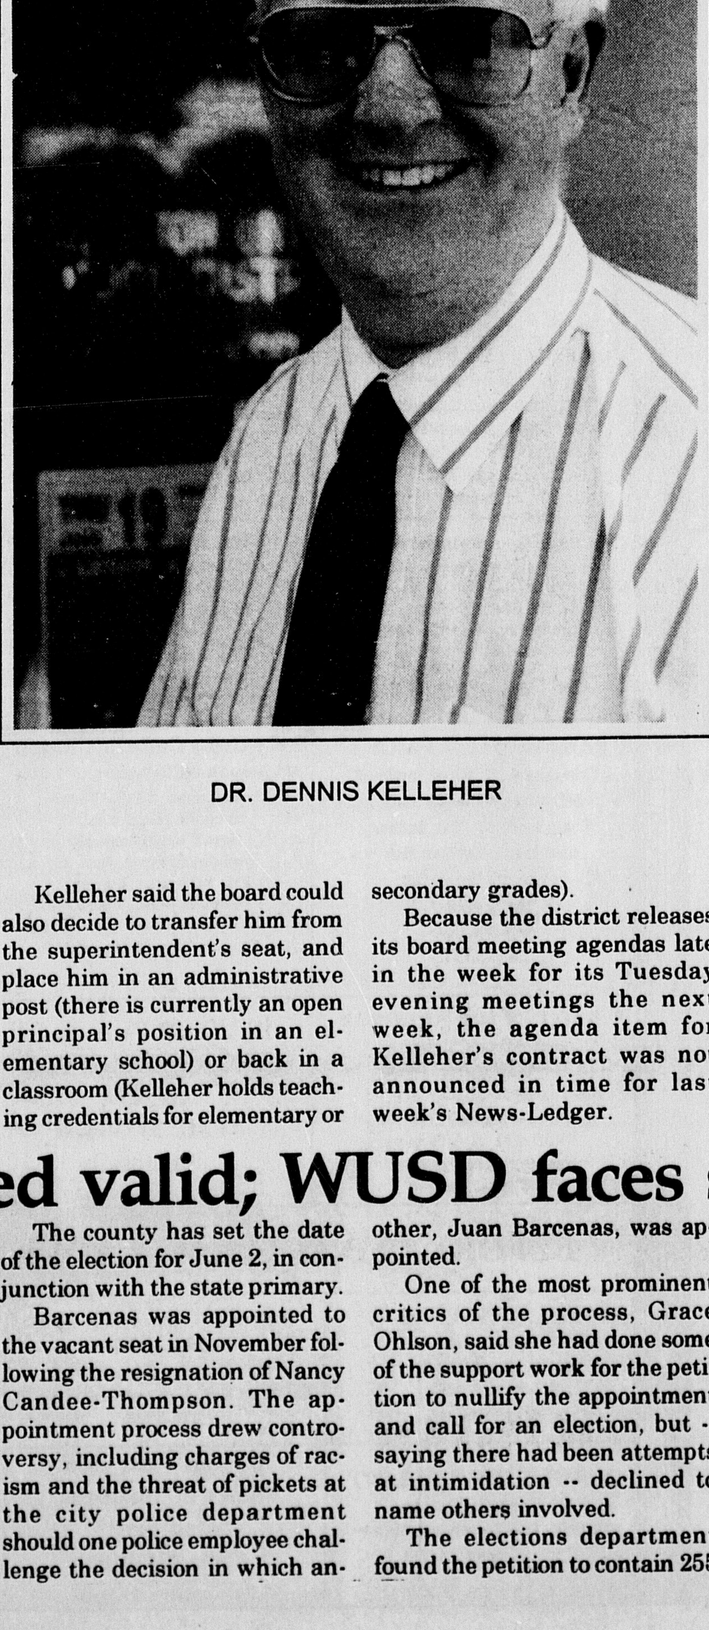
Any announcements to this effect -- if any -- were not available at press time for the News-Ledger.

"I do know my evaluation is up for tonight," Kelleher said Tuesday. "I do know that in the past the board has tied the two (evaluation and action on a contract) together. They have also at times handled the two separately."

Kelleher, a former assistant superintendent, said his current contract calls for him to be told by March whether he is to be retained or removed from his position as head of the district. He has served in his current capacity for approximately a half-year, when the trustees decided to allow the contract of former superintendent Dr. David Miller to expire and then to send Miller on early vacation for the last part of his contract.

Kelleher's hope, he said yesterday, is to receive a contract renewal (or several) as W.U.S.D. superintendent.

"That's my goal," he commented. "I'd like to make this the last stop on my career. I'd like to stay here until I'm ready to retire. I'm 51, and I'd like to retire when I'm 59 1/2."



DR. DENNIS KELLEHER

Kelleher said the board could also decide to transfer him from the superintendent's seat, and place him in an administrative post (there is currently an open principal's position in an elementary school) or back in a classroom (Kelleher holds teaching credentials for elementary or secondary grades).

Because the district releases its board meeting agendas late in the week for its Tuesday evening meetings the next week, the agenda item for Kelleher's contract was not announced in time for last week's News-Ledger.

Contract process defended —

By Steve Marschke

The process used to issue a $20,000 contract to a Southern California consultant who intends to raise the test score performance in West Sacramento schools was not terribly unusual, said Dr. Dennis Kelleher, superintendent of the Washington Unified School District.

"Generally, when we hire a consultant, we almost hire hire a consultant on the spot," said Kelleher. "On an administrative recommendation, we bring in a consultant for a particular job."

For that reason, he added, there was no search for other qualified consultants to fill the perceived need at W.U.S.D.to bring students' test scores up. School board member Hal Williams mentioned the name of consultant Philip Grignon to Kelleher's administration last summer, suggesting they check him out for the task -- but Williams did not personally advocate Grignon, Kelleher said.

Meanwhile, state officials were trying to work out a system for testing the performance of individual schools, and "if a school doesn't perform adequately, it will be labelled a low-performance school and certain remedial measures are going to be brought in," Kelleher said.

The schools of W.U.S.D. were not, according to its students' historical testing performance, high performers.

"Our scores are primarily in the 30 and 40-percentile range, with some in the 50s," said Kelleher. "I can give you ten different excuses why we're not performing well, but that's what they are is excuses: the students are poor, they don't understand English and we don't have enough money. But I know there are other schools out there with the same problems who are performing better than we are."

So the administration prepared to hire Grignon to train W.U.S.D. staff to teach its kids test-taking skills. Kelleher, worried about making an impact on the students prior to the annual state-wide tests in May, prepared the outline of an agenda report for a board meeting last month with the promise of fleshing out the report following a trip to a southern California district where Grignon had worked.

The trip to the San Diego-are district took place just two days before the board was asked to vote on Grignon -- too late for what he learned to be placed on the regular agenda attachments. Kelleher said what he learned in San Diego was that Grignon was not a popular man, but that "this man's system works."

"The whole reason Dr. Grignon is a concern is because he does not have a good relationship with teachers," said Kelleher. "I've heard he's a rotten guy from the teachers, that he's abusive and very autocratic.

Petition ruled valid; WUSD faces special June election for board seat

By Steve Marschke

It's official.

The Yolo County elections department notified the Washington Unified School District last week that a petition to hold a special election for a vacant school board seat was ruled valid and "the provisional appointment of Juan Barcenas made by your Board of Education on 11/12/97 is terminated immediately."

The county has set the date of the election for June 2, in conjunction with the state primary.

Barcenas was appointed to the vacant seat in November following the resignation of Nancy Candee-Thompson. The appointment process drew controversy, including charges of racism and the threat of pickets at the city police department should one police employee challenge the decision in which another, Juan Barcenas, was appointed.

One of the most prominent critics of the process, Grace Ohlson, said she had done some of the support work for the petition to nullify the appointment and call for an election, but -- saying there had been attempts at intimidation -- declined to name others involved.

The elections department found the petition to contain 255 valid signatures out of 282 submitted.. It required 211 to be valid.

Barcenas could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

He -- and any other adult school district resident who is interested -- has at least several weeks to file the papers to run for the seat in June. Details for filing were not immediately available.

The same seat is also due up for regular election in November, along with the seat currently held by Ardeene Westvik.

By consolidating the special school board election with the June primary, the elections department expects to keep the costs to the district down to about $13,000 -- about half of what it would have cost to schedule a special election for the W.U.S.D. seat alone.

Barcenas attended one school board member as a trustee, before the holidays intervened and then the petition terminating his appointment was declared valid.

If he were to decide to run for the seat in June and again in November, and if he were successful each time, Barcenas would face the unusual opportunity of being sworn in as a

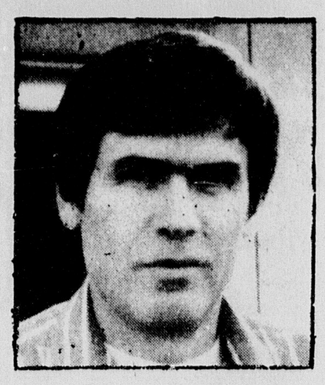
The joy of having a truly clean car -- inside and out

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

This past Saturday, I was standing out in my driveway getting ready to leisurely scrub my truck from top to bottom when my soon to be twenty-three year-old daughter suddenly wheeled her car up behind mine and slammed on the brakes.

'Can't you please pull into the driveway a little bit slower?" I asked her as she climbed out of her car. "Don't you know your front tires are going to get all out of line if you keep slamming them into the curb like that?"

"Just what in the world are you doing?" she asked me, ignoring my question.

"What's it look like I'm doing?" I said as I began to soap down my truck. "I'm washing the car."

"I know you're washing the car, Dad," she said, slowly shaking her head from side to side, "but the question is, why?"

"Because it's dirty," I said matter-of-factly.

"But the weather report says it's going to start pouring down rain any minute now."

"So?"

"So your truck is going to get dirty all over again the minute you back it out of the driveway."

"But that's not the point," I said.

"Then what is the point?" she asked with what appeared to be genuine interest.

"The point is quite simple," I explained. "My truck is filthy and it needs to be washed. If I don't do it now, it's just going to get dirtier and dirtier no matter what the weather is like."

"But don't you know how anal that is, Dad -- to always have to be washing your car -- even on rainy days? You don't see me washing my car all the time, now do you?" she said, pointing proudly to the dirtiest motor vehicle on the block.

"And just look at it," I said. "It's still covered with bird crap even though every bird in the civilized world flew south for the winter months ago."

As my daughter and I continued to exchange verbal punches, I found myself wondering just what it is that prevents most women from experiencing that great inner calm (I think it's a form of bliss, actually) which comes over most men when they know they are driving around in a truly clean vehicle? And why is it that even those women who do keep their cars reasonably clean prefer to have them washed at one of those trendy professional places, where uncaring minimum wage workers charge a small fortune to keep unsuspecting customers from ever discovering the real joys of car-washing? "Dad," said my daughter, shaking my arm, "you're not listening to me."

"I'm sorry," I said, wondering if women will ever understand that cars actually run better when they're clean, "what did you say?"

"I said if you're going to be standing out here in the rain anyway, you might as well go ahead and clean up my car a little bit, too -- if you want."

"Hey, I know what," I said eagerly, "why don't you grab a couple of towels out of the garage and we'll wash our cars together. How's that? I'll even show you how it's done."

"You mean there's actually a technique involved?" she asked with a smile.

"Of course there is," I said, stepping over to my daughter's car with her. "To begin with, you don't want the water too hot and you don't want to leave the soap on too long -- especially on hot days. And you always want to start with the roof and work your way down."

"Why do you have to start at the top? Can't I begin at the bottom if I want?"

Before I could explain to my daughter that wash-

It's "wait until next year" for the Steelers and 49ers and their Super Bowl aspirations. The two home teams lost in their championship game. That is the first time in NFL history that both home teams were underdogs (3 points) and lost!

The Steelers committed four turnovers in their 24-21 loss to the AFC champion Denver Broncos, while the 49ers were outplayed and outcoached by the defending Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packers.

The 49ers had their chances to win the game in their 23-10 loss to the Packers but Green Bay played a great game, acquiring great field position, using excellent time management and didn't turn the ball over. The 49ers No. 1 defense held three-time MVP Brett Favre to 226 yards passing and one touchdown but they couldn't stop the Packers' running game. All-Pro Dorsey Levens rushed for 114 yards, the most the 49ers have allowed this season. The Niners were in bad field position most of the game and could only pick up 33 yards rushing.

Not a good day at the office!

The 49ers had a couple of critical calls that were missed by the referees that would have changed the score, but you have to give credit where credit is due. The Green Bay Packers controlled the tempo of the game and played flawless football!

Super Bowl XXXII - Green Bay vs. Denver:

The oddsmakers in Las Vegas already favor the Packers by two touchdowns. The AFC has not won a Super Bowl in 13 years! The Broncos have never won a Super Bowl game in four tries! The Packers are 3-0 in Super Bowl games!

Do the Broncos have a chance? Can they even cover the large point spread? The answers and my prediction next week!

See ya next week!!

Kings' Korner

By Richard Novoa

The Kings (16-21) returned to the Arco Arena on Monday night after their two-game road trip from Texas, to burn the Phoenix Suns 96-90.

Rookie center Michael Stewart only scored five points but pulled down 19 rebounds and blocked three shots. If you haven't seen this young man in action, you need to head out to the Arco and catch his show! He is fun to watch!

Mitch Richmond also had a great day at the Arco, scoring a season-high 35 points. The Kings are on a roll, winning four out of their last five games.

The Kings beat Dallas last Thursday night to extend their winning streak to four games, but they lost on Saturday to the division-leading San Antonio Spurs by 42 points. The Kings are 8-6 against teams below the .500 mark and 6-14 against teams at or above .500.

The Kings are playing better defense these days, averaging 10 steals per game in their last eight games after averaging 6.5 in their first 26 games. Forward Michael Smith is due back in the lineup on Monday in Philadelphia, after breaking his wrist on Nov. 7 against the Knicks. The Kings play Orlando at home on Wednesday night before they travel back east to face Indiana, Toronto, Cleveland and Milwaukee. Next home game is Jan. 26 against Seattle.

School board made right decision on book

It was good to see the school administration and school board back up a special committee's recommendation and keep the novel "Ordinary People" on the curriculum at River City High School.

Some in the community had objected to the use of the book, which contains (but does not promote) some kinds of bad behavior and foul language. Despite these vulgarities, the state of California had approved the book for use in high schools. The book is a novel by Judith Guest, meant to depict the lives of a troubled contemporary family, and meant to do so in a language close to that the characters might actually have used.

Most of the book's local detractors admit they did not read the entire book, but did read enough excerpts from it to know that some of the characters in it said and did things they wouldn't want their own children doing or saying. It would even be against their rules at home for their children to read this particular book aloud, they pointed out, since to do so they would have had to repeat some foul language.

Condemning a book by studying selected excerpts from it is a dangerous thing. The same technique could be used to keep school children from studying such works as the Bible, or "Huckleberry Finn," for example -- two books which could be of great scholarly value to school-age children.

The Bible, for example, contains many accounts of immoral activity, yet few would argue that it promotes these actions. "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" includes many pages with a racial label not suitable to be reprinted in many newspapers, and yet it is both a wonderful piece of literature and a socially progressive story.

The issue of exactly when a book crosses the line and becomes too vulgar for a school reading list is a tough one to answer. Clearly, one false word within it, uttered in anger by a literary character under extreme duress, should not be too much for anyone attending River City High School to handle (they hear far more while travelling down school corridors from one room to another between class bells).

Clearly, too, there is a point at which a book might be too vulgar, and does not belong in the classroom.

A great many educators have agreed that "Ordinary People" hasn't crossed the place where they draw this line. Parents, of course, are welcome to disagree, and have every right to object to a book such as "Ordinary People" for their own kids if they do.

The proper solution in instances such as this is exactly what we have now. Leave the book in the curriculum for those whose families believe their children are mature enough to handle it and that the book will be a good experience for them. Allow the children of parents who disagree with this policy to study a comparable, more appropriate book instead.

But if we begin the game of banning every book that offends someone from the school curriculum, we will be on our way to creating the state's largest and most unmanageable independent study program. There will be no common curriculum remaining.

Although the discussion over the book "Ordinary People" within the Washington Unified School District was a good one, the school board's decision to keep things the way they are was the right one.

Christmas restored

On Dec. 22, 1997, our home was burglarized. I (Valerie) had gone to dinner with my friend and Rudy was at work.

Sometime between 6:30 pm. and 8:30 p.m. someone ransacked our home. My room had clothes thrown all around, the pillow cases were taken off pillows, and a soccer bag was in the process of being used as another container to carry our things out the window.

I had just put Christmas presents out under the tree Sunday night. Most of these presents were taken also. What hurt most of all was my girls had seen their homemade ornaments were taken. ALL OF THEM. Their tears were just unbearable to see.

Our neighbors heard what happened to our home and were very sympathetic for us. The community offered money to replace the stolen gifts, presents for our family, and a very much needed hug. Dewey Hopper, from Channel 13, also called to see if he could help us out in any way. Christmas is not just about how many gifts you receive but how many ways you can help those in need. I would have never thought our family would receive as much support as we did the night before Christmas. Our family would like to thank the community for its support and love it has given us this holiday season.

Special thanks to all these people who have given to us this memorable year:

Flying the M.I.A. flag

In response to news article about Supervisor Mike McGowan no vote on the M.I.A. Flag.

WILLIAM RESENDEZ

To fly together with "old glory" he gave us a no vote when I read this my brown yankee blood boiled over. I am not the only vet who was disappointed for we all feel that Mike is one of us, he having served in Vietnam.

So I took it upon myself to ask him why the "no" vote, mano a mano, man to man. He is right, his vote was right on target. No other flag should fly on old Glory's pale. Old glory is more than just a flab. When congress declares a war, and our Commander in Chief gives us our marching orders, they stay behind, not old glory, she takes off and gave right with us. Matter of fact old glory takes the paint, she has been with us in every battle in history. She too has been an M.I.A., but old glory always comes through. When old glory comes home, she should and must fly on her own pale high ground. She lets us know that our American spirit is well and strong.

The M.I.A. Flag should have its own pale, and it should be right next to old glory. May we never forget the ones we left behind.

Today old glory spirit is not looked at as it once was. She is not given the respect that she so deserves by many. Too bad. We old veterans. It's our job to love her and defend her, that's what Mike meant with his no vote.

Simper Fi - Mike.

Superintendent's contract

Open letter to the W.U.S.D. school board:

The Board of Education has the power to bypass the process usually used to select a superintendent and give the current temporary superintendent a long-term three or four year contract.

However, if the board expects to be able to pass the needed bond issue to carry out its yet-to-be-developed facilities plan, it should await the election of a new member to the board. The community may not come to board meetings and certainly did not vote in the numbers that they should have in the last election, but they did speak a lack of confidence in defeating the last bond issue. Also, to disregard the request of the community to have an election says, "We have the votes and we shall do what we want."

Local "angels" save the day

Community "Angels" saved Christmas for those kids whose hearts had not been picked off the "Angel Tree" at Raley's on West Capitol Avenue. Bill Fairbairn, Interim Executive Director of the Chamber of Commerce led the pack by giving a generous donation. Bill Collins of the Rotary Club said yes to the pleas of the Volunteer Connection and then Dolores Stockton, from Placer Title Company, came through. Sherry Stubbs of Ozark Trucking, along with Betty Hamzy of The Money Store wanted to make sure Santa was coming to West Sacramento, so they gave too. Besides the wonderful presents that their donations were able to provide, there was another "Angel" in this community that really made the "Angel Tree" happen.

Diane Pleinis, lives right here in town and answered an appeal the Volunteer Connection made in the newspaper. She gathered in over ninety presents after cajoling everyone she knew into being Santa Claus to a West Sacramento youth.

Individuals came into Raley's and just signed up after reading about the tree. Also the Raley's employees themselves signed up. Everyone in town seemed to want to help make this project work for the children.

Bob Navarro, manager of Raley's has a little halo around his head these days, he started this new tradition by allowing the Volunteer Connection to put the "Angel Tree" up at Raley's.

The children whose names appeared on the tree came from various programs here in town. There were Evenstart kids and Broderick Christian Center kids as well as kids from the CAL Mentor program and also some of them came from the Sister/Friend project.

The people of West Sacramento came together and helped the Volunteer Connection make the "Angel Tree" a success.

Close the redevelopment agency

AB923 finds its way to the assembly floor 1-14-97, I'm there with associates from MORR, CARTA, CURE, RAA, Paul Gann's Spirit of 13, and others, to get rid of a wasteful, corrupt, oppressive, socialistic, unethical agency in government. AB923 closes out the Redevelopment Agency. It shuts off all new debt and pays off existing debt and rechannels money back to the cities without corporate welfare manipulating politicians and government officials. It won't cure all government abuses in the financial ssssssssystem, but one poisonous institution terminated is a "good thing."

Please call and just say AB923 ending corporate welfare is good, you would be doing yourself a great service. Assemblyman: Chair Torlakson 445-7890; V Chair McClintock 445-8366; Rico Oller 445-8343; George House 445-7906; Berni Richter 445-7298; Senator Quentin Kopp 445-0503. Taxpayer groups state-wide support it.

Luncheon at the Hyatt ($22.50) which anyone may attend to show support for this cause will be interesting. Just come...or call Jean Heinl staying at the Best Western Sutter Fort Hotel, if you're shy.

Traffic Meeting 1-8-98 finally will be submitting a program to the city council which sets up a standard procedure for getting your residential traffic problems solved -- fairly and equally throughout the city. Simple to follow, step-by-step guidelines, which will be initiated by you having a consultation with a Traffic Engineer, who will, in turn, give you a petition to get signed which will be the mechanism to inform your neighbors that there will be a meeting to discuss your problem. It goes on from there, but the process is one-step-at-a-time and the same for everybody. May seem unimportant to the average person, but when you have been trying to get some equality on this subject for over four years, you become grateful to Councilman Chris Cabaldon, Traffic Committee Chair, for leading the staff to tie this issue down.

Residence should not have to wonder through a governmental mist, fearing a quicksand of paperwork and frustration from lack of understanding codes and programs which a city staff get paid to know. Books fill the library shelves and keep the cobwebs in place and still fail to tell you what to do or where to go in order to get answers. We are not on Earth for the government to herd us like cattle. U.S. Government started off as a helper and protector. Somewhere along the line, it mutated into an self-serving entity which feeds off the working class.

Richard Gann's coming initiative confining debt to its "original" voted-on purpose will reign in vast "money ghosts." Bonding schemes which seem to keep being paid for, like the Port, but you can never trace the money will end.

The Schools seem to have more than questionable hiring procedures lately. But this county is know for nepotism. If you ask for qualifications, you should want a qualified person rather than a relative hired to do a job. Now if a relative is qualified there is a difference, but this has not been the case. Nor has it been the case that felons are disqualified from school jobs, what's going on in this town. In my family, you're disqualified from family functions until you straighten up.

Gov Wilson's approach to the unscrupulous politicians which misuse public funds for marina's, golf courses, etc., rather than spend tax dollars on maintaining the schools, consisted of giving them more money which should be fixing your streets and drains and sewers. So, he sounded benevolent but now he will issue bonds and up our taxes so cities like Sacramento can continue to fund projects which will indirectly benefit politicians -- not tax payers. Where are all those new politicians who ran on accountability and tax reform? I'd be afraid of lightening, if I were in their shoes. Proud of the direction our country is taking? A "healthy" cancer cell thrives on consuming normal cells. Eventually there is nothing more to consume. Reward those who contribute to society -- not those who leech from or hurt it, protect the weak without weakening the strong. God didn't say life would be easy. He said we'd feel good about ourself through accomplishment. Phone about AB923, a good deed.

DARYL from p. 2

ing a car from the bottom up was completely out of the question, I made the mistake of glancing through the driver's window and into the interior of her car. "My God!" I shouted in horror.

"What now?" asked my daughter with alarm. "What's the matter?"

"I don't think I've ever seen anything quite like it before," I mumbled, still not believing my eyes.

"Like what?"

"Like the inside of your car!" There was garbage and assorted junk scattered absolutely everywhere, including empty Diet Coke and Dr. Pepper cans, Burger King and McDonald's cheeseburger wrappers, dozens of wadded up Kleenex tissues, old lipstick and eye mascara containers, used straws, discarded pens and pencils, books and college exam papers, paper clips, coins of every size and denomination, gym socks in need of a good wash, and a even couple of combs big enough that they could probably be used to successfully fight off a car highjacker.

"Just what's wrong with the inside of my car?" asked my daughter.

"You've got to take care of it!" I tried to explain from my hopelessly male point of view. "The inside of a car is a sacred place. It's a person's home away from home. It's where you listen to great music, think really profound thoughts, make love for the first time, and hide from the all the problems of the real world. You have to keep it clean -- even cleaner than the outside of your car."

"Well, it looks okay to me."

"But it does not look okay! It looks like the inside of a giant purse!"

W.U.S.D. board member three times within a one-year period.

His appointment in November of 1997 came with the support of board members Ireke Eklund, Pat Flint and Hal Williams. Then-board president Ardeene Westvik favored a different candidate following the interviews of a half-dozen applicants for the position.

But despite all of these bad things, what I didn't hear is that his programs didn't work."

At the meeting on Grignon's proposed W.U.S.D. contract, the local teacher's union opposed his hiring.

But the school board majority of Williams, Irene Eklund and Pat Flint voted to hire Grignon. Members Ardeene Westvik and Juan Barcenas abastained, saying they weren't comfortable with the level of expertise they had on the proposal.

Teachers' union representative Patty Waggoner could not be reached for comment in repeated attempts by the News-Ledger.

Grignon is slated to meet on Feb. 2 for a half-day of training with all W.U.S.D. management -- including leaders in food service, budget duties and other administrative areas. He will follow up with a whistle-stop tour of every classroom in the district (over 200 classes) on Feb. 3, and is scheduled for 18 other days working with the district.
